TNC Delegation Attends NSLC

The annual delegate conference of the Nazarene Student Leadership Conference was held April 22-25 at Olivet Nazarene College. NSLC is an organization of Nazarene College Student Government leaders from the 8 liberal arts colleges in the U.S., one in Canada, and the Seminary and Bible College.

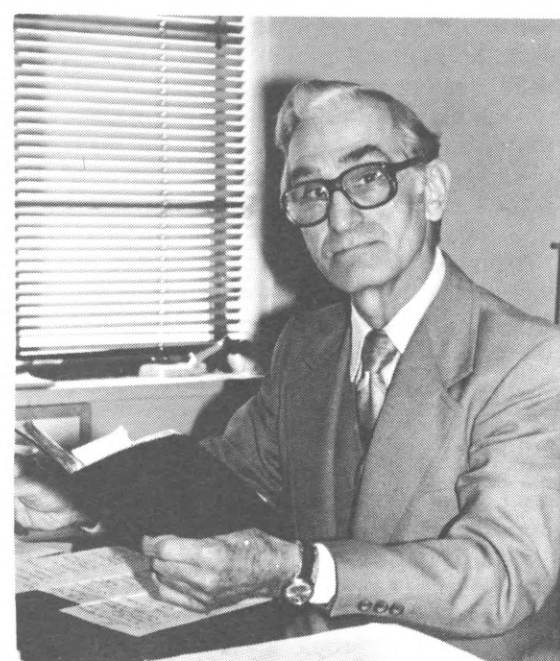

Trevecca's delegates this year were outgoing President Kevin Ulmet, President-Elect Dwight Gunter, Secretary-Elect Carol Herring, Vice President of Social Activities-Elect Finley Knowles, Vice President of Religious Life-Elect Rocky Jenkins, and the two Student Deans, Dr. Privett and Mr. Gallup.

Trevecca President, Kevin Ulmet, was elected by the conference to serve as co-chairman of the organization for 1981-82, serving with Dr.

Mark Moore, Department of Education Chairman in Kansas City. This will also make Ulmet a member of the General NYI Council of the Church, and of some committees.

The conference, attended by around 60 deans and student leaders focused on the pressures and how-to's of leadership, as well as business sessions for the electing of officers and going over the Constitution and By-Laws of the organization.

All who attended from Trevecca expressed glowing praise for the time spent and commented on the help received for next year in establishing the new officers in their responsibilities. Trevecca, represented by seven people, had the largest delegation there with the exception of Eastern Nazarene College, which also had seven.

Phillips/Childers Honored

Phillips

by Tom Felder

Contrary to popular belief, Mrs. Adrienne Hollins Phillips is not retiring. At least that's the way she looks at it. In her opinion, her situation is much like Walter Cronkite's, who claimed that he was not retiring, but "just changing jobs." Since she plans to be involved in other activities, including writing, she feels the same way.

Adrienne Phillips is a native of Virginia, but has spent over forty-one years here in Nashville. Most of that time includes service on Trevecca's faculty which she joined in 1943 as Dean of Women.

In 1944, Mrs. Phillips left Trevecca to finish work on a Masters at Peabody, which she received a year later. She then went to Washington, D.C., where she served in the Cryptographic Service of the United States Signal Corps for two years. This was followed by three years of teaching high school in Kansas City, while her husband, K.W. Phillips, was attending Nazarene Theological Seminary.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips returned to Trevecca in 1949. She then rejoined the faculty, this time as professor of English and modern foreign languages. They have been here ever since and a recent count estimates that approximately eleven thousand students have been taught by her.

Mrs. Phillips has also been involved in other activities. She has assisted her husband in pastorates in Lebanon and Smyrna, Tennessee, as well as Radnor Church of the Nazarene, here in Nashville. This included teaching young adults, serving as missionary president and church organist. At present, Mrs. Phillips serves as organist for the Wise Memorial Bible Class at Nashville First Church of the Nazarene.

Childers

by Tom Felder

As might be expected of someone who is about to retire, Dr. Charles L. Childers is eagerly awaiting that special day. After twenty-two years of service here at Trevecca, he is very anxious to be able to relax and do some things like writing and yard work. He will miss his students, but he is definitely not sad about leaving the pressures of being a professor.

Although many people see Dr. Childers as a down-to-earth type person, he does have an impressive list of accomplishments behind him. He has received degrees from Howard Payne College in Brownwood, Texas; Asbury Theological Seminary and the University of Louisville. He received a Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University in 1959.

Dr. Childers has also been very successful as an author. One of his most famous works was his Commentary on Luke in the Beacon Bible Commentary series. He has also written fifteen Sunday School lessons on Luke in 1966-67, as well as having had numerous articles published in Herald of Holiness. Dr. Childers has also written several poems and a few songs; both published and unpublished.

Dr. Childers' experience as educator has been acquired exclusively at Trevecca. He joined the faculty in 1954, and has held many positions since then. These include principal of Trevecca High School, Dean of Instruction and chairman of both the English Department and Division of Languages, Literature and Speech. He has also taught in the Religion, English and History departments.

Dr. Childers has received several honors. These include being listed in Personalities of the South, 1974-76; Dictionary of International Biography, 1975-76; Outstanding Educators of America, 1975; Notable Americans of the Bicentennial Era, 1976 and Who's Who in the South and Southeast. The Times of Your Life

by Richard Guess

As plans unfold for this year's Junior-Senior Banquet, it promises to be a night of great entertainment and excellent dining. In keeping with the banquet's theme, The Times of Your Life, the Junior class hopes that the evening will become one of those "cherished memories of life at Trevecca" for all who attend.

This year's entertainment will be provided by the well known artist/producer, Phil Johnson. Phil is the producer behind such talented groups as the Wall Brothers Band. He also writes songs that are familiar to anyone who listens to gospel music. Phil performs only on rare occasions and only then to select audiences, so Trevecca is privileged to have him. His easy-going style and meaningful songs will be the highlight of the evening.

This year's setting will create the kind of atmosphere in which memories are made. The Iris Room, on the fourth floor of the Cain-Sloan Department Store (downtown), will be offering a delicious buffet that will include two choices of meats, three vegetables, salad and dessert. The meal will be served in a relaxed, candlelit atmosphere, in a dining room that features large bay windows overlooking the city of Nashville.

Of course, back by popular demand, will be the traditional slide-show, featuring candid photos of Seniors, taken from years gone by. This part of the program is one that will have to be seen to be believed. Five or six years can really change a person's appearance, that's for sure.

All things considered, the 1981 Junior-Senior Banquet will be one of those times of your life, so make plans now to attend. Also, plan to capture this occasion on film, so that you can pass the pictures around at your class reunion in twenty years. A photographer will be there before and after the banquet to take pictures of couples.

The 1981 Junior-Senior Banquet, a time of your life that you won't want to miss.

The President's Ultimatum

If there weren't too many exciting contested races in the Student Body Elections a few weeks ago, there sure were in the Class Elections this week! A grand total of 49 candidates ran for offices for the next year to serve Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors. Posters and signs were literally everywhere on campus, reminiscent of the "good old days" of student elections. It brought back many memories, needless to say.

For the first time in four years, I was not running for an office during an election season. This being my last year, graduating in just weeks now, I wanted to comment on the returns of involvement! I have held office at the class and student body level now for three years. I was soundly defeated my first attempt as Freshman President. There were very close races in my three victories, among them a seven-vote win for Executive Vice-President last year. But the experiences I have gained over these three years of holding office and four of running for them have been priceless. I understand myself and my abilities better. I understand how to cope with pressure and problems better. I understand somewhat better what it means to decide how I should go on an issue and then pursue it, no matter the opinions of others. And the relationships established, often with people completely opposite of myself have been super.

As I leave office for the last time, though, I do want to leave some words of warning and concern if I may. I am convinced that student leadership at Trevecca carries with it much responsibility. Not only must people understand how to do the job they are elected to do, but they must also understand the commitment required in their personal lives if elected. There should be no double standard of morality and lifestyle at this college. Everyone should abide by the rules and philosophy of this college. But even if everyone doesn't, student leaders should.

As I have said many times since being here, The Community Living Council is an example of the fine quality of our student government, and yet the very existence of CLC has been and may be again threatened as we know it, especially if the reasons for continuing it are not appearing strong enough. Among those reasons is the idea that if students are involved in the rule-making process they should keep the rules. Student leaders should be examples in lifestyle as well as policy and leadership, and should have the full trust and respect of students and Administrators/Faculty alike. This can only happen through disciplined lifestyles.

I hope that the student leaders of this next year will have the courage to admit that following a sensible system of rules is not a restriction, but is setting oneself free from the useless elements that involve potential damage to one's life and freely living out an exemplary life. More than that, our relationship to Christ should be so close that we are seen as spiritual strongholds as well by our peers and superiors.

Involvement does have its returns — and I hope some of them will be the things I have just mentioned for this next year's officers!

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

While reading about all the confusion surrounding the assassination attempt on President Reagan and the ensuing attempt to place blame, whether it be the Secret Service for dropping its guard, the easy accessibility of "Saturday night specials," or just our U.S. lifestyles, one almost overlooks the latest Hollywood movie reviews. Most specifically, a movie called Taxi Driver about a demented loser who stalks a political figure. (U.S. News) John Hinkley confessed to seeing and being affected by this movie and became the "misfit who craved fame."

How much does it take for us to realize the influence of movies and television on our society? How many more individuals are looking to movie theaters for directions in living? Where is our "moral" majority?

So many of us take for granted the convictions of our church and school. I'm thankful that our forefathers saw the problems years ago, and our present leaders stand by these convictions today. Will our generation remain faithful to these beliefs or will we turn to some new ideas? Let's remember to turn to God and the Bible, not to the cinema or the T.V. Guide.

SGA Activity Super Saver

by Finley Knowles

Next year will begin a new day in Trevecca activities. It's called the "SGA Activity Super Saver." The Super Saver is a card that is purchased in the registration line that will give its bearer free admission to all SGA, on-campus activities.

The Super Saver is like a season ticket for activities. And here's the best part; it only costs $7.00. That's right folks! $7.00 for all activities sponsored on campus by SGA. Concerts, movies, variety shows, contests, etc. (Doesn't include club or class activities.) Super Saver is also good for a 10% discount on retreats and a 25% discount on SGA skating parties. It's a great offer.

Here's the way it works at the door. The Super Saver card along with student ID is merely presented instead of cash or tickets. It's easy, and it costs a lot less.

So when going through registration line, look for the SGA Activities Super Saver booth and get ready to save a bunch!

Facing The Issue

Everyone deserves at least one award during their lifetime. I would like to take a few minutes of the readers' time to present awards to various persons and groups on campus who have performed unusual services or added personality to the Trevecca community this year.

To Hal Cauthron, I present the Prophet Lookalike Award. To Eddie Goode, I offer the Artist of the Year Award. To the 1980-81 Trojan Basketball Team, I present the Hit Me With Your Best Shot Award.

To Sheri Hankins, I show appreciation for her extended graciousness in her funding for the Refurbish the Johnson Lobby Contest. To Brenda Brodien, I extend appreciation for increased TIA participation, and I bestow the Trevecca One-Liner Award for all of her witty conversational contributions.

To "Pioneer" Bill Sinclair, I present a new, improved version of the Cast Iron Stomach Award. I applaud Concert Choir, under the leadership of Professor Jarret, for its excellent musical quality and for the presence of the Spirit in their services. I offer David Deese an award for having the Most Improved Departmental Appearance at WNAZ.

To Wilma Gallup, I bestow the Triple Crown Florence Nightingale Angel of Mercy Award for her extraordinary, selfless service during the "flu epidemic" and all during the year.

I applaud Dr. Homer J. Adams for his Master Plan and his unending visions and dreams of how great Trevecca can be. I also offer Dean Privett a Perseverance Award for smiling while taking the blame for every single thing that did go wrong this year that was NOT his fault, including the last bad test grade you had or the athlete's foot you got from borrowing your roommate's green and pink socks.

I thank Mr. M. L. White for his promptness in financial matters, and in handling all requests that came through his office. To Howard Wall and Harvey Hendershot, I bestow lifetime memberships to the Esteemed Society of Creative Americans, who because of their talent, have made this country a better place in which to live.

To Carolyn Hardy and the Darda staff, I offer the Too Little Glory For Amount of Work Done Award, and I reaffirm my confidence in the excellent book we will receive next fall because of their efforts.

To the Maintenance Department and the Switchboard Operators I offer the Undying Patience Award.

And finally, I bestow awards to the freshmen and the seniors:

To the freshmen, I present the Enthusiastically Movin' Ahead Award, and to the seniors, I present the Reluctantly Movin' Ahead Award.

Student Spotlight

Lisa Smith

by Sheri McMurrin

Meet Lisa Smith. She is twenty-two years old and a senior at Trevecca this year. She has a double major in Early Childhood and Special Education, and she will be concluding her education this summer when she finishes her student teaching at home.

Lisa transferred to Trevecca last year. She chose Trevecca mainly because of its excellent Special Education program. Other reasons were because of its closeness to home and her parent's influence.

"Trevecca's people are friendly. It's easy to fit in, and the teachers are very helpful and caring," says Lisa. She likes Trevecca and said that these factors made it easier on her when she transferred here last year.

Lisa leads a very active life. Besides the hobbies of sewing, playing the piano, cooking, and stamp collecting, she holds down three jobs! She is a departmental assistant for the Education Department, works as cashier in the Administration building, and works as night receptionist in Georgia dorm.

Most of the students know Lisa for the work she has done for Janusians. She really enjoys drama and is secretary of the club. The costume designs of the plays Meet Me in St. Louis and You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown were Lisa's creations.

After graduating, Lisa plans to find a job somewhere near Nashville working with handicapped and emotionally disturbed children. Other future goals are to be the most efficient teacher she can, to someday get married and raise a Christian family.

The person Lisa most admires is her mother. She said her mother has been the glue of the family. "She's my best friend and a good Christian woman. I want to be like her," stated Lisa.

What is Lisa's philosophy of life? Live life to the fullest. Start each day and do as much as we can to glorify God and to witness to others. Share as much happiness with others as you can. I think life is too short to spend arguing over little insignificant things.

If you can catch Lisa between her three jobs, classes, and her many other responsibilities, ask her about Morgan Le Faye or King Arthur's court. Or just sit and talk with her about her family and pet cat named Pole Cat.

Dale

by Sheri McMurrin

At twenty-one Dale Farmer is a down-to-earth hard working guy. He is a junior majoring in biology. His parents, a sister, and a brother live at home in Fairfield, Ohio.

Dale likes Trevecca because he enjoys being around other Christians the same age. He also enjoys meeting people.

If an activity has something to do with nature you probably will find Dale in the middle of it. He doesn't even mind hard work, especially if it is done outside. In fact, future plans are aimed towards being a forest ranger.

Another of Dale's favorite pastimes is playing his banjo. He currently uses this talent playing with the Peak Family. He has been traveling on weekends performing with this gospel group for two and one-half years.

After finishing school and seeking a park ranger job, becoming active in a local church is part of Dale's future plans. One goal he wants to achieve is the completion of a hike up the Appalachian trail. He would like to accomplish this adventure the summer after he graduates.

Dale feels people put too much emphasis on material things. "People should think about more important things such as being happy and doing the Lord's will." He also thinks people should set goals in life and try to reach them.

Dale has worked in maintenance for three years. He likes working hard. During the summer months he works on a pipeline crew traveling from place to place replacing pipes and fixing oil leaks for SOHIO and the Standard Oil Company.

Faculty Profile

LOIS WOLFGANG

by Betty Wright

Lois Wolfgang is the Director of the Medical Assistance Program here at Trevecca. She also teaches Marriage and the Family along with some of the health classes in the Physical Education Department and works with the Physician Assistant's Program.

All in all, Mrs. Wolfgang has taught for eight years. Most of those eight years were spent in nursing schools. She has taught at Trevecca two and a half years.

When she graduated from college her major was nursing.

Mrs. Wolfgang has been married for eighteen years. She and her husband have two children, Bradley, who is sixteen, and Amy, who is eleven.

Mrs. Wolfgang's hobbies include collecting owls, (I am sure several of us feel she can have the ones that have been flying around outside of Johnson Dorm), church work (in which she is deeply involved), and needlepoint.

She is so deeply involved in church work because most of her married life has been spent as the wife of a minister. Her husband pastored in churches in Ohio, Tennessee, and Illinois for fifteen years. Mr. Wolfgang is now the Associate Pastor at College Hill and the Chaplain for Trevecca Towers. He graduated from Trevecca with an Elementary Education major.

When asked if she had a philosophy of teaching, Mrs. Wolfgang replied, "My philosophy is to have a climate which creates a desire for students to learn, but is not stressful to the point of discouragement."

World in Brief

Police in Atlanta report a body found early Tuesday in a southeast residential area appears to be that of a 16-year-old black male. They have called in the special task force investigating the deaths of 26 other young blacks.

Rightist Christian radio has an unconfirmed report that Syrian soldiers fired ground-to-air missiles at Israeli warplanes over Lebanon Tuesday. This is the first reported firing of the missiles, Syria and Israel are at each other's throats over the installation of the missiles. U.S. envoy Philip Habib met with Israeli leaders Tuesday for three hours of what he described as "frank and complete talks" on the missile crisis in Lebanon.

France's new Socialist president-elect Francois Mitterrand, is continuing consultations on an interim cabinet. A spokesman says Communists and other leftist parties who support Mitterrand will be included. Airport customs officers in Paris are guarding against the illegal export of Francs by people who fear Socialist president-elect Mitterrand will nationalize banks and businesses.

The body of Bob Marley, the man who made Jamaica's hard-driving Raggae music famous worldwide, is to be flown back to his native island for funeral services. Marley died of cancer Monday in Miami. He was 36 years old.

The Reagan Administration has disclosed the details of its plan to save the Social Security system. The proposals would penalize people who retire before age 65 . . . reward those who work longer . . . and give everyone a tax cut beginning in 1985. Health and Human Services Secretary Richard Schweiker, who made the plan public, emphasized the only effect on today's 31-million retirees would be a three-month delay in payment of their cost-of-living increase this year. Schweiker said enactment of the proposals will put Social Security back on sound financial ground indefinitely.

Thousands of farmers from all over Poland gathered outside Warsaw district court Tuesday to hear the decision they'd been fighting for. The crowd applauded and cheered as a judge announced over a public address system that an independent farmers' union, known as Rural Solidarity, has been formally registered. The decision marks a big victory for the farmers against Poland's Communist leadership.

Energy Secretary James Edwards said Tuesday he intends to remain in his post and team up with Interior Secretary James Watt to "break loose" Federal lands for energy exploration. Broadcast interviewers (on NBC's "Today" show) asked Edwards about reports he may return to South Carolina and run for another term as governor. Edwards answered, "I'm here to stay for the duration."

Monday was Irving Berlin's 93rd birthday. The grand old man of American popular music composed the music for scores of movies and Broadway hits, including Annie Get Your Gun and Call Me Madam. Among the Berlin tunes that have become American classics are Alexander's Ragtime Band and Easter Parade. Probably the most commercially successful was White Christmas, but Berlin's favorite among his songs remains God Bless America.

Manpower Inc. Offers Jobs To College Students

"If you possess office skills, you've got a good chance at landing a summer job." So says Mitchell S. Fromstein, president of Manpower, Inc., the world's largest temporary service firm.

"Students may not consider themselves 'office material', but many will be surprised to find they have the skills in demand. We are able to discover and develop 'hidden skills' that many never know they have. And office work is an excellent way to get experience in the business world, which is a big plus for those graduating in June," Fromstein added.

Applicants are interviewed, tested and assigned to work that closely matches their interests and aptitudes.

"In a single summer, our temporary employee may work in one office or in several, and all the assignments will be comfortable and enjoyable," said Fromstein.

While U.S. Department of Labor estimates are still incomplete, it is expected that the job market this summer will be tighter than one year ago, when approximately 28,000,000 sought summer employment. Most available jobs will pay the current $3.35 minimum wage, or close to it.

"If you have the skills Manpower is looking for, you can generally earn a higher wage working temporary assignments," Fromstein said.

Although Manpower also assigns industrial, technical and health care temporaries, most of the summer opportunities are in office related positions, such as typists, secretaries, billing clerks, assistant bookkeepers and office machine operators. Most college students possess some skills that can be used on temporary office assignments.

To apply for summer work as a temporary, contact the local Manpower Temporary Services office (listed in the White Pages) or use a 24-hour toll-free Employment Hotline at (800) 331-1000. By using the toll-free number, students will be able to schedule an interview now with the Manpower office closest to their hometown in order to get a head start on the increasing struggle for summer jobs.

A subsidiary of the Parker Pen Company, Manpower annually provides employment to 600,000 persons through its 900 offices in 31 countries. Office services account for more than half of the jobs at which its temporary work force is engaged.

Energy Forecast

Saudi Arabia's oil minister says his country is willing to raise its price of $32 a barrel to get other members of OPEC to agree on a unified pricing plan.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani says a deal on the price of oil probably will not come at the next OPEC meeting, set for May 25 in Geneva, although his country is willing to raise its prices.

The Saudis have been pressing OPEC to adopt a united pricing policy, with regular increases based on inflation, industrial growth and currency changes.

But many OPEC members are resisting the idea, and agreement at the next OPEC meeting is considered unlikely.

Speaking in New York recently, Yamani also said Saudi Arabia has proved its friendship with the United States. He said his country has been producing more oil than is needed, to prevent prices from rising to much higher levels and to avoid causing great damage to the world economy.

He also pointed out that Saudi Arabia is charging $4 or more less per barrel than most other oil-producing nations. Yamani noted that the U.S. imports 1,300,000 million barrels of oil a day from Saudi Arabia. And he said that means his country is foregoing nearly 2 billion dollars a year in favor of the United States.

The age-old forces of supply and demand helped push profits lower in the first quarter for Exxon and Gulf. Exxon says earnings were down nearly 17 percent at 1,600,000,000 dollars. Gulf says it made 303 million dollars in the first quarter, down 22 percent from the same period last year.

Both companies say the problem was too much supply and not enough demand. Higher prices are forcing people to use less fuel, so supplies have built up and companies haven't been able to pass on the higher cost of crude oil.

Ride XChange

For years, students have been hitching cross-country rides. Now, for economic travel Ride Xchange, a long distance ride-sharing service has been established.

Ride Xchange is a non-profit referral service, based in Silver Springs, Maryland, which has been operating since last August. The company offers membership for a one-time registration fee of $10, plus a deposit of $10. With that you receive a member ID number.

The $10 fee entitles you to five rides. When the $10 is used up, another $10 must be deposited. According to Ride Xchange spokeswoman, Julie Webster, the service includes airplanes, vans, cars, and yachts and motor homes as well.

Ride Xchange members must fill out a confidential application form giving their name, address, social security number, driver's license number and other identification. Ride Xchange does not assume any responsibility for riders, although it does everything possible to ensure the safety of its members.

Members may want to check with their insurance companies to be sure riders are covered in case of an accident.

To get a ride, after becoming a Ride Xchange member, is a simple matter. If you need a ride to New York City, for example, call the company and you will be provided with a list of rides. You will be responsible for contacting your ride and making arrangements. Only first names and phone numbers will be released.

The auto company that led the way in air bag research has quit making them.

General Motors says it's ending its commitment to air bags, because, in the words of a GM spokesman, We could hardly give them away.

The bag cushions passengers in a crash by inflating on impact.

Under a law passed during the Carter Administration, automakers were to be required to offer some form of passive restraint on big cars in 1982. But the Reagan Administration has already postponed that law, and a cancellation seems likely.

GM offered air bags as optional equipment from 1974 to 1977, but sold few, says a spokesman.

SGA President-Elect Gives Plans

by Tom Felder

With class elections completed, the newly-elected Student Government Assembly is beginning to move forward with plans for the shift in administration. Dwight Gunter, SGA President-elect, is busy preparing for the change which, he hopes, will lead to a more unified, and effective student government.

Dwight's main goal is to establish a professional working relationship with the administration, as well as a smooth running student government. He feels that there are no real changes that need to be made, rather a re-evaluation of our purpose, and a more effective movement toward that purpose. According to Dwight, that purpose is an education for service to God. He feels that everything should point toward that and that SGA's main priority should be to support the purpose.

Dwight looks at his role as leader in three different perspectives. He considers himself first of all as a leader, especially in the area of planning and goal-setting. He secondly looks at himself as a mediator, both between students and administration and through meetings and controversies. He then considers manager as the third aspect of his position.

Speaking of the recent elections, Dwight disagreed with many who pointed to the ASB elections as a sign of apathy. He feels that many students do not consider their vote important. He backs up

One objective of Nazarene colleges is to provide academic excellence. There are many evidences, such as favorable accreditation reviews and awards, which indicate they are achieving or have approached this goal.

Recently, two Nazarene colleges were acclaimed for their excellence in the area of teacher education. Northwest Nazarene College's Teacher Education Program was selected from over 200 applicant programs by the Educational Testing Service as being one of the better undergraduate programs for teacher preparation in the United States. Congratulations to the director, Dr. Lilburn Wische, and to NNC.

Trevecca Nazarene College's Summer Workshop Program was recognized by ACT as being one of three outstanding adult education programs among 900 applicant programs considered. Dr. G.R. Pennington and Trevecca are to be commended for their excellence.

this stand by referring to the great turnout in last week's class elections. He believes that many students are beginning to realize that it was important to get involved and campaign for office, as well as vote.

The first meeting of the new Student Government Assembly was held on May 7, and was mainly organizational. There was some business with the major item being the appointing of Community Living Council committees. These committees will begin work this week in preparation for the upcoming CLC meeting. Other committees are to be selected in the near future.

Get A Job!!

It's well known that, come Spring, a college graduate's fancy turns to thoughts of steady employment. That first "real" job that means — no looking back now — you're a grown-up.

So the graduate runs off, resume in hand, stopping at every other corporation door, asking that palm-sweating classic: Does This Place Want Me?

What you should be asking is, Do I Want This Place?

An article in Working Woman magazine spells it out for you: There's no such thing as "the" good job. What's "good" for one person might be "bad" for another.

But no doubt there's a "right" job for you. To find it you need to know yourself pretty well.

Once you get the basics down, like what profession you want, what salary you'll accept, and how far you're willing to commute, you have to consider the other, subtler, but no less important, shades of your life.

Do you prefer:

Working with people or with inanimate objects such as papers or computers?

Predictable daily routine or a varied routine that requires initiative?

Undemanding work or constantly challenging assignments?

Security or promotion possibilities?

Work you find interesting?

Power?

Status?

As the Working Woman article points out, you may discover that the desk job your friends are drooling over would be slow torture for you.

Finding out what you want will help during the job interview. Some interviewers say they pay more attention to the job applicant's questions rather than his answers.

You might want to ask what your job duties will be. What happened to the last few people who held this job? Were they promoted? Did they quit? Were they fired? Is the company expanding, stable or retrenching? What about this department?

The answers will tell you whether you'll need to test your creativity in the job or feel free to snuggle into a cozy niche; whether the job is a place to settle or something to use as a springboard; whether you'll be free to experiment with new ideas or have to follow established guidelines.

All of this lets the interviewer know you're more than just mildly interested in the company and your future.

And if you don't find out the answer to these questions until you've worked at the job for a while, don't worry — you can always use the questions at your next job interview.

Sigma Variety Show

by Betty Wright

On April 14, 1981, at the old College Hill Church of the Nazarene sanctuary, the Sigma Society presented the Sigma Variety Show. There was quite a bit of talent displayed throughout the night. Debbie Blakeman was responsible for getting the show together.

Initiations for the club were held the preceeding week. Therefore, some of the new pledges got to display their talent as well. For example, Dawn Douglass' rendition of I'll Never Forget That Day.

There were other acts that people outside of Sigma performed. Mike Wilkerson and his friend, Skeet Taylor, had a wonderful spitting contest and even managed to get the audience involved.

The show's main attraction was Tina Clower, Miss Nashville 1979, and her little friend Joey. Joey wanted everyone to know that he thought Kevin Ulmet looked like a million dollars to him and when Tina told Joey he had never seen a million dollars before, Joey replied, "I know he looks like something I have never seen before."

The night was a success. Everyone that came enjoyed the entertainment. After it was over someone commented they wished they had been in that '50 Chevy just to see Mike Wilkerson on roller skates.

Thanks, Bill

by Renee Marsh

Bill Sinclair Appreciation Day was Thursday, April 23. At the beginning of chapel, appreciation was shown to him by the student body. S.G.A. presented Bill a certificate entitling him to dinner for two at Michael's.

Bill received a degree in Food Service Management from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. After serving as assistant food manager at Mid-America for one year, he came to Trevecca. A representative of Pioneer Food Services, Bill is doing a great job here at

Bill's birthday was April 24. The Civinettes presented him with a beautiful picture clock bought with donations from students. Bill celebrated the week of his birthday by preparing a delicious Mexican meal, with the help of Civinettes.

Every year, students should show their appreciation to Bill for his contributions to Trevecca. He has made tremendous improvements in our cafeteria service, and we hope he'll remain with us for quite a while.

Congratulations!

The Trev-Echoes staff wishes to congratulate the following people in their elections to class offices. It is a privilege to have so many fine people in service.

Kevin Ulmet Reflects on the 1980-81 School Year

by Tom Felder

With the end of another academic year approaching fast, the time for looking back is arriving. And the outgoing ASB President, Kevin Ulmet is doing just that. Yet, he is also looking ahead.

Perhaps the biggest issue of the past year has been the Community Living Council controversy. Kevin looks on this issue as both the high and low of the year. He feels that the fact that the situation ever happened was the low point. However, he strongly believes that SGA "effectively defended the CLC system as a viable rule-making system." In his opinion, CLC has not suffered, but is actually stronger. He says that while there were some excesses by a few people, the majority of those involved operated with "common sense" and open communication.

Kevin feels that SGA's most important achievements included the physical improvements, such as Benson parking being paved, hot water for Benson and changes in cafeteria, as well as library hours being extended last quarter.

Kevin also had some advice for next year's leaders. He feels that they should strive for more unity in SGA and the student body as a whole. He also stressed more communication from leaders to students as a definite must. He feels that students should take their jobs seriously and work for the students who elected them.

Kevin also leaves advice to the student body as a whole. He feels that both students and student leaders alike must "internalize," that is, they should develop a Christian value system with high morals and a consistent Christian lifestyle that is "constant against the normal flow of society and campus."

Kevin's immediate plans include marriage to Karen Michaels this summer. He is really looking forward to this and proudly claims that he is marrying the most beautiful girl in the world. After marriage, Kevin plans to enter Nazarene Theological Seminary, where he hopes to continue his love of tennis and politics.

College Seniors Aided In Establishing Credit

Applying for and getting a job is probably the foremost concern of most graduating seniors. But there is another kind of application you should be thinking about—credit.

Why?

Because establishing a credit rating—like finding a job—is an important step to financial independence.

For example, did you know that in some states you can't rent a car without a major charge or credit card? In addition to a driver's license, most retailers require a card for ID before agreeing to cash a personal check. With a bank credit card or charge card you can get ready cash when you are far from home.

And, a fact of life: having your first card makes it easier to get other ones. Other kinds of credit that let you make major purchases, like a car or home, will also be easier to get once you have established a credit rating.

Only The Size Is The Same

Before you apply for a card, you should understand the differences between a "credit" and a "charge" card. While the terms are often used interchangeably, they are not the same.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO (charge cards), including American Express, Carte Blanche, and Diners Club, charge an annual fee used to support services offered to members. There are no preset spending limits. Spending limits are flexible and depend primarily on an individual's personal history of spending and paying.

Because payment of the entire bill is due upon receipt, charge cards help eliminate the temptation to spend more money than one can realistically afford, so they can be a good money management tool.

BUY-NOW-PAY-LATER (credit cards) like MasterCard and VISA are primarily issued through banks. They were often called "free" cards because there was no annual fee to use them. Now, though, many banks have initiated annual fees.

The banks receive most of their income from interest charges collected on unpaid balances. The annual percentage rate on these cards can run as high as 24 percent. At these rates, the interest alone could run up to hundreds of dollars on an annual basis. There is also a spending limit to each account.

Retail and oil company cards are in this same category, but can generally only be used at outlets of the company that issued the card.

Special Student Programs

It isn't as difficult to establish a credit rating as you might think. Some card issuers have special programs directed at graduating seniors.

American Express, for example, has a special program for students. If you are a college senior within one year of graduation, you can qualify for the Card if you have the promise of a job paying $10,000 or more a year, and no negative credit history. To request a student application, call toll-free (800) 528-8000.

Another way to establish a credit rating is to take out a personal loan and repay it in regular monthly payments.

They are both graduates of Trevecca as is Sara Ellen's husband, Louie Bustle. There are also two grandchildren, Beth Ann and John Phillip Bustle. Kathleen is a teacher at Pioneer Christian Academy, in Nashville, and the Bustles are missionaries in the Dominican Republic.

Although Adrienne Phillips is leaving Trevecca, she does not plan to change her loyalties. According to Mrs. Phillips, Trevecca has been a part of her life for so long, that she will "always be concerned with its progress." Her loyalty is deeply rooted, as she was a member of Trevecca's first four-year graduating class, back in 1942. In fact, it is so deeply rooted that she is hoping that her two grandchildren will be like all the other members of her family, and someday become Trevecca graduates.

Perhaps one of Mrs. Phillip's favorite interests is travelling. Altogether her travels have included a six-week tour of Europe, a three-week stay in Mexico City to study Spanish, two trips to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, a ten-day stay in Santa Domingo and a visit to Canada.

Mrs. Phillips is also involved in several organizations. These include membership in the College English Association, Tennessee Foreign Language Association and the American Association of University Professors. She is also a member of the Ladies Hermitage Association, Phi Delta Lambda, Pi Gamma Mu, and is listed in the Dictionary of International Biography.

The Phillips' have two daughters, Sara Ellen Bustle and Lyla Kathleen Phillips.

also received the first TNC Teacher of the Year Award in 1969, as well as the Distinguished Educator Award at the 1972 General Assembly.

Travelling is another one of Dr. Childers' strongpoints. He has taken four trips abroad, and visited thirty-two countries. These include nations in Western and Eastern Europe, the Middle East and the Orient.

In reflecting on Trevecca, Dr. Childers said that he felt it a privilege to work here. He commented that he had had several opportunities to leave, but was glad he never did. He feels that the college is definitely headed for better days. According to Dr. Childers, Trevecca needs older professors for their experience, and the younger ones for their vision and physical abilities. He feels that TNC has both of those qualities.

Civinettes . . . Involved

by Renee Marsh

Exceptional, progressive, involved, industrious, and concerned are all words describing Civinettes, one of the campus service organizations.

This year, Civinettes sponsored projects in many different realms. They served students and community alike.

Many awards have been received by the Civinettes this year. Lynn Wilson, club president, received a leadership award during a recent Music City Senior Civitans meeting. Marianne Booth was awarded runnerup in the Miss Valley District Pageant, and the club won Club of the Year and Most Improved Club for its collective efforts.

The Civinettes held a book fair earlier this quarter and donated $260 to the library. They presented the check while conducting chapel on Monday, May 4. During the same service, they were able to present the TPS Choir, directed by Stanley Stewart. Many hearts were touched by their music.

Supporting the presentation of You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown, the Civinettes brought their "little sisters" to see the Lyceum musical. The trip was followed by a party for the members and their "little sisters" that same weekend.

Each member of the club had a secret pal throughout the year. On Monday, May 4, the members revealed their secret pals at a Civinette breakfast. This brought each member a little closer in spirit and in thoughts.

The Civinettes not only participated in the Honor Society Quiz Bowl, but they also participated in the Sigma Society Carnival held Saturday, May 16. Civinettes will support TIA by decorating for their banquet on May 26. Involved . . . that's Civinettes.

The Civinettes have several upcoming events including a yard sale with all profits going to the Merci Home for retarded citizens. On May 29 and 30, Civinettes will be working with the Special Olympics at Vanderbilt University.

Radio Dramas Entertain Local Audiences

by Wayne Sharpe

The WNAZ Radio Theater originated because of a need for more local programming, according to WNAZ Production Manager, Jeff Thompson. He and Kenny D. Westenburg, Executive Producer of the radio dramas, both being avid members of the Janusians, felt the two groups could come together and successfully co-produce the dramas.

The first radio drama, directed by Jeff Thompson, was The House of the Seven Gables. House of the Seven Gables is about a family curse, which is actually an inherited disease. Stars were Cindy Holmes, Kim Finch, Lloyd Brock and Randy Lewis. Extras included Alan Corbin, D.R. Hendershot, Wayne Sharpe, Christine ElSaieh, Diane Spaur and Brad Jones. The show aired Feb. 14.

The second drama, which aired on April 24, was My Double and How He Undid Me, directed by Cindy Holmes.

A barbarious spoof of two mixed-up lookalikes. Starring in My Double were Tom Dula, Dave Edwards, Kim Finch and Lena Hegi. Extras included Wayne Sharpe, Christine ElSaieh and Diana Stevenson.

The Little Mermaid is the third radio drama and it is in production at the time of this writing. The Little Mermaid is directed by Becky Hulstine, and the plot is about a mermaid's love for a mortal man. Stars are Randy Lewis, Kim Finch, Lena Hegi and Jeff Thompson. Extras are Becky Clem, Christine ElSaieh and Marsha Brockman.

Veteran radio character, Christine ElSaieh sums up her experiences, saying, "It was hard work, but well worth it," speaking of all the parts she has played. Apparently, all involved share her feelings.

If you have missed hearing the radio dramas, tune in to WNAZ, 89-FM on May 23 and you can hear them during WNAZ's 14th Birthday Celebration.

Million In Scholarships —But No Takers

The annual cost of attending a private college, averaging $6,500 in 1981, will jump to more than $11,000 by 1985. Even a state university education in five years will cost more than $6,000 annually. In this same 5 year time period, President Reagan has announced as part of his budget cuts a $9.2 billion reduction in student assistance.

The hardships forced by this trend on U.S. families helps explain why three out of ten college students today are dropping out of school in their freshman year. Despite this bleak picture, nearly $150 million in scholarship funds probably will go unclaimed in 1981, according to Daniel J. Cassidy, 24, founder and president of the National Scholarship Research Service (NSRS).

Cassidy noted that this huge reservoir of funds will go untapped largely because of public ignorance and misconceptions about eligibility requirements. "Middle and even upper-middle-income people are eligible for many of the presently available scholarships and loans," he said. NSRS keeps computer records of nearly a quarter million individual scholarships worth $500 million.

For $35, applicants may receive a printout of about 50 listings, as well as details on how best to use the information. Forms may be obtained from the National Scholarship Research Service, 88 Belvedere St., Suite E, San Rafael, Calif. 94901. The phone number: (415) 459-3323.

WNAZ Benefit Scheduled

by D.R. Henderson

Perhaps you have never been to a live taping concert before. Your chance is here.

Higher Ground will be taping a concert on campus on June 5 as a benefit for WNAZ, 89-FM, Trevecca's Contemporary Christian Music Station. They will appear in the Eva Green Benson auditorium of the J.O. McClurkan building.

Also appearing will be a Trevecca-based group known as The Outdoor Protestant Gravel Eaters. Members include Alan Lenderman, Dana Clark, Phil Robertson, Joe Lovell, Ron Jones and Mike Wilkerson.

Don't miss this special concert! Remember, June 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Benson Auditorium. Tickets are $1.75 for students with valid ID's. Other tickets are $3.00.

COLLEGE GAMES

ROCK 'N ROLL MENAGERIE A Zoological Music Quiz

The world of rock 'n roll is filled with animals! Just give a listen to what's playing throughout the dorms. The Beatles are as alive as ever. The Eagles' new album is doing well. Even defunct groups from the '60s, like The Animals, are going through a resurgence of popularity on stereos across campuses everywhere. Doesn't it strike you as strange that a typical list of rock bands reads like the lineup from Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom? It doesn't? Well then, you should have no trouble matching the ten rock recordings listed below with the animal groups that brought them to the charts. And just to make it a bit more grizzly, the editors of Games magazine have thrown in five mythical groups to throw you off the track. Wolfman Jack, eat your heart out!

Drabble Does It Again

Norman Drabble is a shy, sensitive, insecure and a bit confused college student.

He's also king of a comic strip full of enough misadventures to fill a book. And a book is just what creator Kevin Fagan and Fawcett Columbine Books have put him in. The First Book of Drabble ($3.95), the initial collection of the best of Drabble, is set for publication April 15th.

Drabble's problem, of course, is that he tries too hard not to show just how shy and insecure he is. He's at a time in his life when he's not quite sure who he is or what he should be doing—a common feeling among most young people.

Drabble tries desperately to impress Wendy Fleetwood, a very beautiful and popular girl who can take her pick when it comes to men. She likes him but doesn't want to be his girlfriend, so Drabble spends most of his time trying hard to be suave and debonair—which usually does not work.

Rounding out the cast are Norman's savvy little brother, Patrick, and his over-protective mother and under-protective father, who often wonder if they got the right baby from the maternity ward.

Everyone who has known a Drabble (and who hasn't?) or has been a Norman Drabble will find this great new strip refreshingly funny.

At 22, Kevin Fagan became America's youngest syndicated comic strip cartoonist when his strip was launched by United Feature Syndicate two years ago. Charles Schulz, creator of Peanuts, gave the young cartoonist his first encouragement. Drabble currently appears in 100 publications in the U.S. and Canada.

SPORTS

Tennis, Anyone?

by Brenda Brodien

MEN'S TENNIS:

The men's tennis, under the coaching of Alan Smith, enjoyed a winning season placing 4th in the Western Division. Their overall record was 10-9. In the conference they rallied to 6th place and ended with a 8-6 record.

The best singles record this year went to Freshman Dale Schneidmiller from Antioch Tenn. Dale went 15-4 overall and 12-2 in the conference.

The best doubles went to B.J. Rook and Dale Schneidmiller. They were 10-4 in the conference and 13-5 overall.

Mark Williams had a good year with an ending record of 11-8. The only member who won't be returning next year is Greg Daily. Greg has played ever since his freshman year and will most certainly be missed on the team.

WOMEN'S TENNIS:

Women's tennis is over, and after adjusting to a coach change and working with two new additions to the team; they came out with a winning season record of 10-5.

Steve Harris came in just after the season started, thus the girls had to adjust to this coach change and a few new methods, but they were able to pull things together and came out winning.

The two new additions to the team during the year were Brenda Fry playing 4th position, and Be Haight in the 5th position. Coach Harris said they helped add strength to the team.

In a dual meet with Belmont College, the Trojans came out on top for the first time ever. Tura Shmitz, playing in the #1 position, beat her high school rival, D.C. Speakman. Tura's record was 11-4 overall and 11-3 in the conference.

The captain of the team and playing #2, Kim Anderson, ended with a good season 11-4 overall and 10-4 in the conference.

The only senior on the team, Patty Carroll, played #3 position. She's been an asset to the team her four years here. Freshman Ann Driggers ended with a record of 11-4, 11-3 in the conference.

Jill Shortinghouse and Tina Phillips also helped out on the courts this year.

The Trojans finished 4th in the Women's VSAC Tennis Tournament and rallied to achieve the top 3 runner-up positions in Doubles Competition. Schmitz and Anderson paired up for first, Carroll and Fry were second and Driggers and Haight placed third.

The women rallied to win 6 out of their last 7 matched and overcame Union University which was undefeated at their time of defeat. All in all the girls did a fine job and Coach Harris is looking forward to an even better year on ahead.

Baseball

With a winning season under their cleats, the Trevecca Trojans stormed into the VSAC Tournament. By virtue of their #2 finish in the West, they were matched against Carsen-Newman, the #1 team in the East. The Trojans proved the old adage that #2 tries harder by bombing Carsen-Newman. In the victory the Trojans lashed out 19 hits belting 5 homers in the 14-7 victory.

This pitted the Trojans against their hometown rival David Lipscomb, the 3rd ranked team in the nation. Unfortunately the Trojans didn't fair as well as in the prior game. Despite Mark Brown's 2-run homer in the 7th inning, the Trojans were beaten 10-3. The tired Trojans then took a tournament ending loss at the hands of Tenn-Wesleyan 12-4.

Although the losses spoiled the hopes of making it into district play, they still had an outstanding year, finishing 29-13 while smashing 7 school records. At the sticks, the Trojans boosted their batting bass player named Louie Hall, and a guitar, was both singer and minister to the huge crowd. Francisco brought the concert to the audience, by emphasizing audience participation. Although Francisco used taped backgrounds on Got to Tell Somebody, and He's Alive, he let the message of salvation through Christ ring out in his songs.

Francisco's encore was well justified, as was the time spent, witnessing the whole event. Francisco equaled and surpassed such secular balladeers as Harry Chapin and left the concertgoers feeling as if they had communed, in a very real sense, with God.

average over last year's by a wailing 45 points making it .346. This in turn helped round in a new home-run record of 53.

Freshman pitcher, Kenny Hamilton, broke the strike-out record with 17 in one game. This helped bring the team total up to 302 passing the old '78 record of 289.

The nine year old record for the highest batting average was broken by Jim Brown with a landish .410. Steve Dahlhauser belted 15 doubles to break Rick Browns record from 1976.

Mike MacIntyre, the thief on the team, stole the most bases in one game and broke that record with 5.

Losing 6 starters can be damaging to any team, but Coach Elliot Johnson got to work, recruited and pulled together a winning combination. The players come from all over the U.S., (Fla, Ohio, Ill., VA. to name a few), yet they worked together and played like a championship team. The Trojans will only lose 3 players this year, J.D. Hogan, Steve Dahlhauser and Captain Bob Mullins. The team is looking forward to another winning season and with one year under their belts, they expect to go farther next year.

TIA Banquet To Be Held

by Brenda Brodien

The All-Stars will be awarded their trophies at the Annual Intramural Sports Award Banquet to be held Tuesday May 19th at 6:30 p.m. in the College Hill Annex. Admission is free to those in the meal plan and the food will be good! Tickets can be picked up in the Cafe during meal times. Other awards to be given out will be Sportsmanship, Most Valuable Player, Mr. & Mrs. Intramural and the highlight of the evening, Society of the Year.

Computer Information Systems Introduced at TNC

By: Anita Thompson

In recent years, business firms, industrial organizations, and government agencies have increased their dependency on computers and computer programming. This, along with the prediction of the upcoming paperless office, has increased the need for persons educated in originating, outlining, and operating computer systems.

In light of the present trend, the Business Department of Trevecca, chaired by Gerald Skinner, has decided to offer a four-year minor and a two-year degree program in Computer Information Systems this fall. This addition to the curriculum is indeed progressive. Statisticians predict that by 1990 demand for computer programmers will more than double, creating some 250,000 new positions, and computer programmers don't get chintzy pay either. According to Infosystems magazine, on-the-job workers averaged more than $13,000 last year and junior programmers averaged $16,000.

Another plus for prospective computer programmers with four-year degrees is that employers like to hire them at entry-level and often pay them $19,000 or more to start.

Plans for Trevecca Computer Information Systems students include courses taught in a real work environment, using 4 newly-purchased computer terminals, and the availability of some of the finest programs and systems design instructors in the business world.

Each student will learn to write, test, and debug programs written in basic computer languages such as BASIC, RPG and COBOL. Students will also be expected to develop a practical computer information system and develop awareness of different types of operating systems and hardware.

If you have questions about the new Computer Information Systems major or minor at Trevecca, see Professor Gerald Skinner soon. Enrollment in the program is limited.

And if you are simply interested in finding out more about computer jobs and schools with computer programs, as well as the most current computer languages. Then write to Computers, New York State Consumer Protection Board, Two World Trade Center, Room 2525, New York, N.Y. 10047, for a free 71-page guide.
